SEATTLE – Moneytree was named as a finalist on Washington's Best Workplaces list by the Puget Sound Business Journal (PSBJ). This is the second consecutive year Moneytree has recognized as a finalist. The finalists will be honored at an awards event at Safeco Field on August 13.

After an extensive process, which included more than 300 nominees and the completion of surveys by nominee-company employees across the state, workplaces in four different categories have been identified as Washington's best, based on their various employee benefit offerings, leadership culture and work/life balance philosophies. In total, 65 companies have made the grade as finalists.

Aggie Clark, Moneytree President, stated, "As we prepare to celebrate our 25th anniversary, we are elated to once again be recognized by the Puget Sound Business Journal as a Best Workplace." Dennis Bassford, Moneytree CEO, echoed Ms. Clark's sentiments: "We are gratified by the recognition as it's a direct reflection that our team members enjoy their jobs, feel valued and are committed to our communities."

The Puget Sound Business Journal's announcement is the second time Moneytree has been honored this summer for their work environment. In June, Washington CEO Magazine recognized Moneytree as the Best Company to Work For in Washington. It was the sixth time on the list for the Seattle-based, family owned Moneytree.
